

Prince Harry officially renounces British residency, lists himself as a 'US citizen'

London, 20 April 2024, (G): In response to Prince Harry's formal renunciation of British residency and his establishment of the United States as his new place of residence, Buckingham Palace has recently initiated its presence on social media platforms.

According to a report by the New York Post, Prince Harry, who is married to Meghan Markle, has officially abandoned his British residency and designated the United States as his primary abode in updated legal documentation.

Allegedly, Prince Harry participated in Travalyst's annual general meeting through video conferencing. Travalyst, an organization advocating for sustainable travel, was established by the Duke of Sussex in 2019. The submission of annual company returns at year-end involved the incorporation of Prince Harry's revised personal details.

The documentation filed notably identifies the "United States" as Prince Harry's "new country/state" of residence.

Following the public disclosure of these documents, Buckingham Palace, representing King Charles and other senior members of the royal family, has released its first official post on X, previously recognized as the palace's official Twitter handle.

The palace extends congratulations to the Royal Humane Society on its 250th anniversary since inception. Led by HRH Princess Alexandra, @RoyalHumane remains the world's oldest charity, dedicated to recognizing courageous efforts in saving human lives.
